

Fate

Two shall be born the whole wide world apart,
And speak in different tongues, and have no thought
Each of the other's being, and no heed;
And these o'er unknown seas to unknown lands
Shall cross, escaping wreck, defying death,
And all unconsciously shape every act
And bend each wandering step to this one end —
That, one day out of darkness, they shall meet
And read life's meaning in each other's eyes.

And two shall walk some narrow way of life
So nearly side by side that should one turn Ever so little space to left or right
They needs must stand acknowledged face to face.
And yet, with wistful eyes that never meet,
With groping hands that never clasp, and lips
Calling in vain to ears that never hear,
They seek each other all their weary days
And die unsatisfied — and this is Fate!

Upon the Road

Look at the travelers here today, passing through, then on their way.

Greasy hat and hand on hips ancient clothes and puzzled lips.

The ragged one, tin cup in hand, dweller in the hopeless land.

Short little lady with red shoes on,
op-art dress and skin of bronze.

Across the street comes man worn out,
his face in lines that show the bout.

Colored boy with green shirt on,
long haired child this land belong.

See the rushing business man, pastel shirt and check in hand.

Overhead the drone of planes, within the city work remains.

Man walks here with arm amiss, cheapened medal, single fist.

Here they walk and there they rise, products of a thousand lies.

An aged man with walking cane, listens to a jets refrain.

by bruce g. graham

A timely girl in a mini skirt, mother with a face that's hurt.

Shirts and jeans and walking canes people are born and clouds bring rain.

Out of the black of the midnight sky,
the light of truth and wisdom lie.

People from the street so bare,
not so bare if you are there.

Lurking in the depths of earth,
a hint of melancholy birth.

People from the streets you roam,
we cannot live if you go home.

Each of you make all the rest,
none is good, but all the best.

And if it be that you should ask!
which one first? and, who is last?

I tell you now, consider this,
you are here and on the list.

The one who lives can never lose,
and he who hurts will get new shoes.

All for one and you're not last,
some die tonight or mornings past.

S. Flanford

Fields of Daisies

We met one day,
walking through the fields
of fresh daisies,
which are my favorite flower.

We talked,
about the things
that made us both sad.

He held my hand
to comfort me.

We laughed,
but then I cried.

For when we walked,
once more, through the fields
of fresh daisies,

I knew

I had not found the right words to say —

I was only looking for a friend.

Tomorrow

Thoughts,
Pass through the mind,
As often as the gulls
Fly
Over the sea.

Memories,
Come back,
As often as the waves
Rush
To the shore.

And Time, Passes on,
As quickly as the sun
Dissolves
Behind the horizon of Tomorrow.

At one time or another each student finds himself entering the door of the Kanawha County Animal Shelter. The walk down the rows of cages can be so depressing . . . then you see Fler . . . she fits into your dreams. Reluctantly you leave the shelter empty handed, knowing it's all for the best. For some reason you soon return, determined that there's some way to avoid the rules. She's yours — all yours. You smile because she's brought you so much happiness and she smiles back. It's still just a dream when she's reported and you must return Fler. When the man asks, "Why?" you just say you can't keep Fler. It hurts. You ask that the flea collar be left on Fler, to protect Fler from the little, annoying fleas. Once more you reluctantly leave the shelter, but this time tears that can't be stopped run down your cheeks. For you loved Fler and in Fler way she loved you. And you will never forget.

Country Idyl

The sound of country
is pleasant and dear, Either in the morning
or when night is near,
The sound of rustling
leaves in the fall,
or just sitting, listening,
to no sound at all,
I have heard many a sound
from all around,
but none more beautiful
as country sound.

The song I sing is one without words
A lament known only to my lover
A musical message she dares not tell me
The words to convince are known only to birds.
This beauty of mine is like the tree without leaves
A stark, bare fact of the spring to come.
Somewhat poetic, but not yet aesthetic
It must be enhanced by the coming of green.
As time moves on nature does the song,
Until its wild words form declarations.
When spring is found listen for that sound of blue-eyed birds and bud green.
When the time is felt ripe do not hesitate,
Answer my singing thing.
Call loud and clear, let me know you endear
The affection renowned by spring.

Tree

Ah,
You silhouetted against the sky
If only I could be so open . . .
To raise my arms
    in ungestured Want and need,
    To softly say,
"This is me,
    I am alive.
I take this earth
    and return it I milk from her my life.
I am alive . . .
    I love . . .
I reach to the sky . . .
    I live."

As each year passes, we can note more changes in our college than the year before. Hopefully, these changes are for the better. As the educational needs of our students change, so must our academic programs. Our faculty has been outstanding in developing new programs to better serve some of our students. Yet, we must resist the temptation to sit back and rest on our laurels. There are many new horizons to be conquered each year if Morris Harvey College is to continue playing a vital role in the lives of so many young people.

To the graduating seniors, I wish good luck and good fortune. I hope your presence on our campus has been an enjoyable one. As the word "commencement" is defined, this is the beginning. This is your beginning, and I hope you will make the most of it.

To those of you who will return in the fall for classes, I can only say that I hope you will "hang in there." For when you finally earn the right to participate in commencement exercises, you will feel a great sense of accomplishment that has no equal.

"Kanawha Room Disappears," "Speed Reading Course Offered," "Roman Feast Planned," "Volleyball Begins" . . . just a few of the fast-breaking news events covered by this year's COMET staff.

There was Rudge's Arts' Festival, Snyder's editorials, Hof's tuition increase, Sex and Drugs as told by Litton, "King's Kaustic Komments;" but these were too few and much too far apart. Mangus, Brill and Hackney, our feature regulars, were responsible for much of this year's paper . . . invaluable to say the least.

Whether or not success was achieved is merely a matter of opinion. It was, of course, not the COMET's best year, nor was it the worst . . . it reflected the personality of the 1972-73 schoolyear: highly mediocre.

There was, in fact, only one note of consistency achieved by the COMET staff this year . . . not one deadline was met . . . not one deadline was met . . . not one deadline was met . . .

the messiah by mhc

The thirty-third annual performance of George Fredrick Handel's Messiah was presented in December, 1972, by MHC and conducted by Harold W. Ewing. Soloists for the event were Miss Erma C. Brooke, Alan J. Arthur, James Wallace, all former MHC students, and Jan Phillips of Huntington.

Ah! Snow! Now's a perfect chance to get even with that friend and a good excuse for cutting classes. Although the snow was little, few times and far between the commuter students surely received all they cared to see. With play-time in the heart, the library was vacated, dorms too, but the outside sure had the extra activities. But though there was plenty of play and snowman building there were some that did continue to study at nights and go to class and take some tests in the midst of all the whiteness. Teachers? Well, some were patient knowing it would only last a few days, but there were others who pulled out quizzes that COULD NOT be made up. So that was the way it went around Mo Harv for a few days at a time. The followup? Of course there were colds and coughs and crying because of lost time for study and those quizzes. OH DEAR!!!

vietnam

When we met here four years ago, America was bleak in spirit, depressed by the prospect of seemingly endless war abroad and of destructive conflict at home.

As we meet here today, we stand on the threshold of a new era of peace in the world.

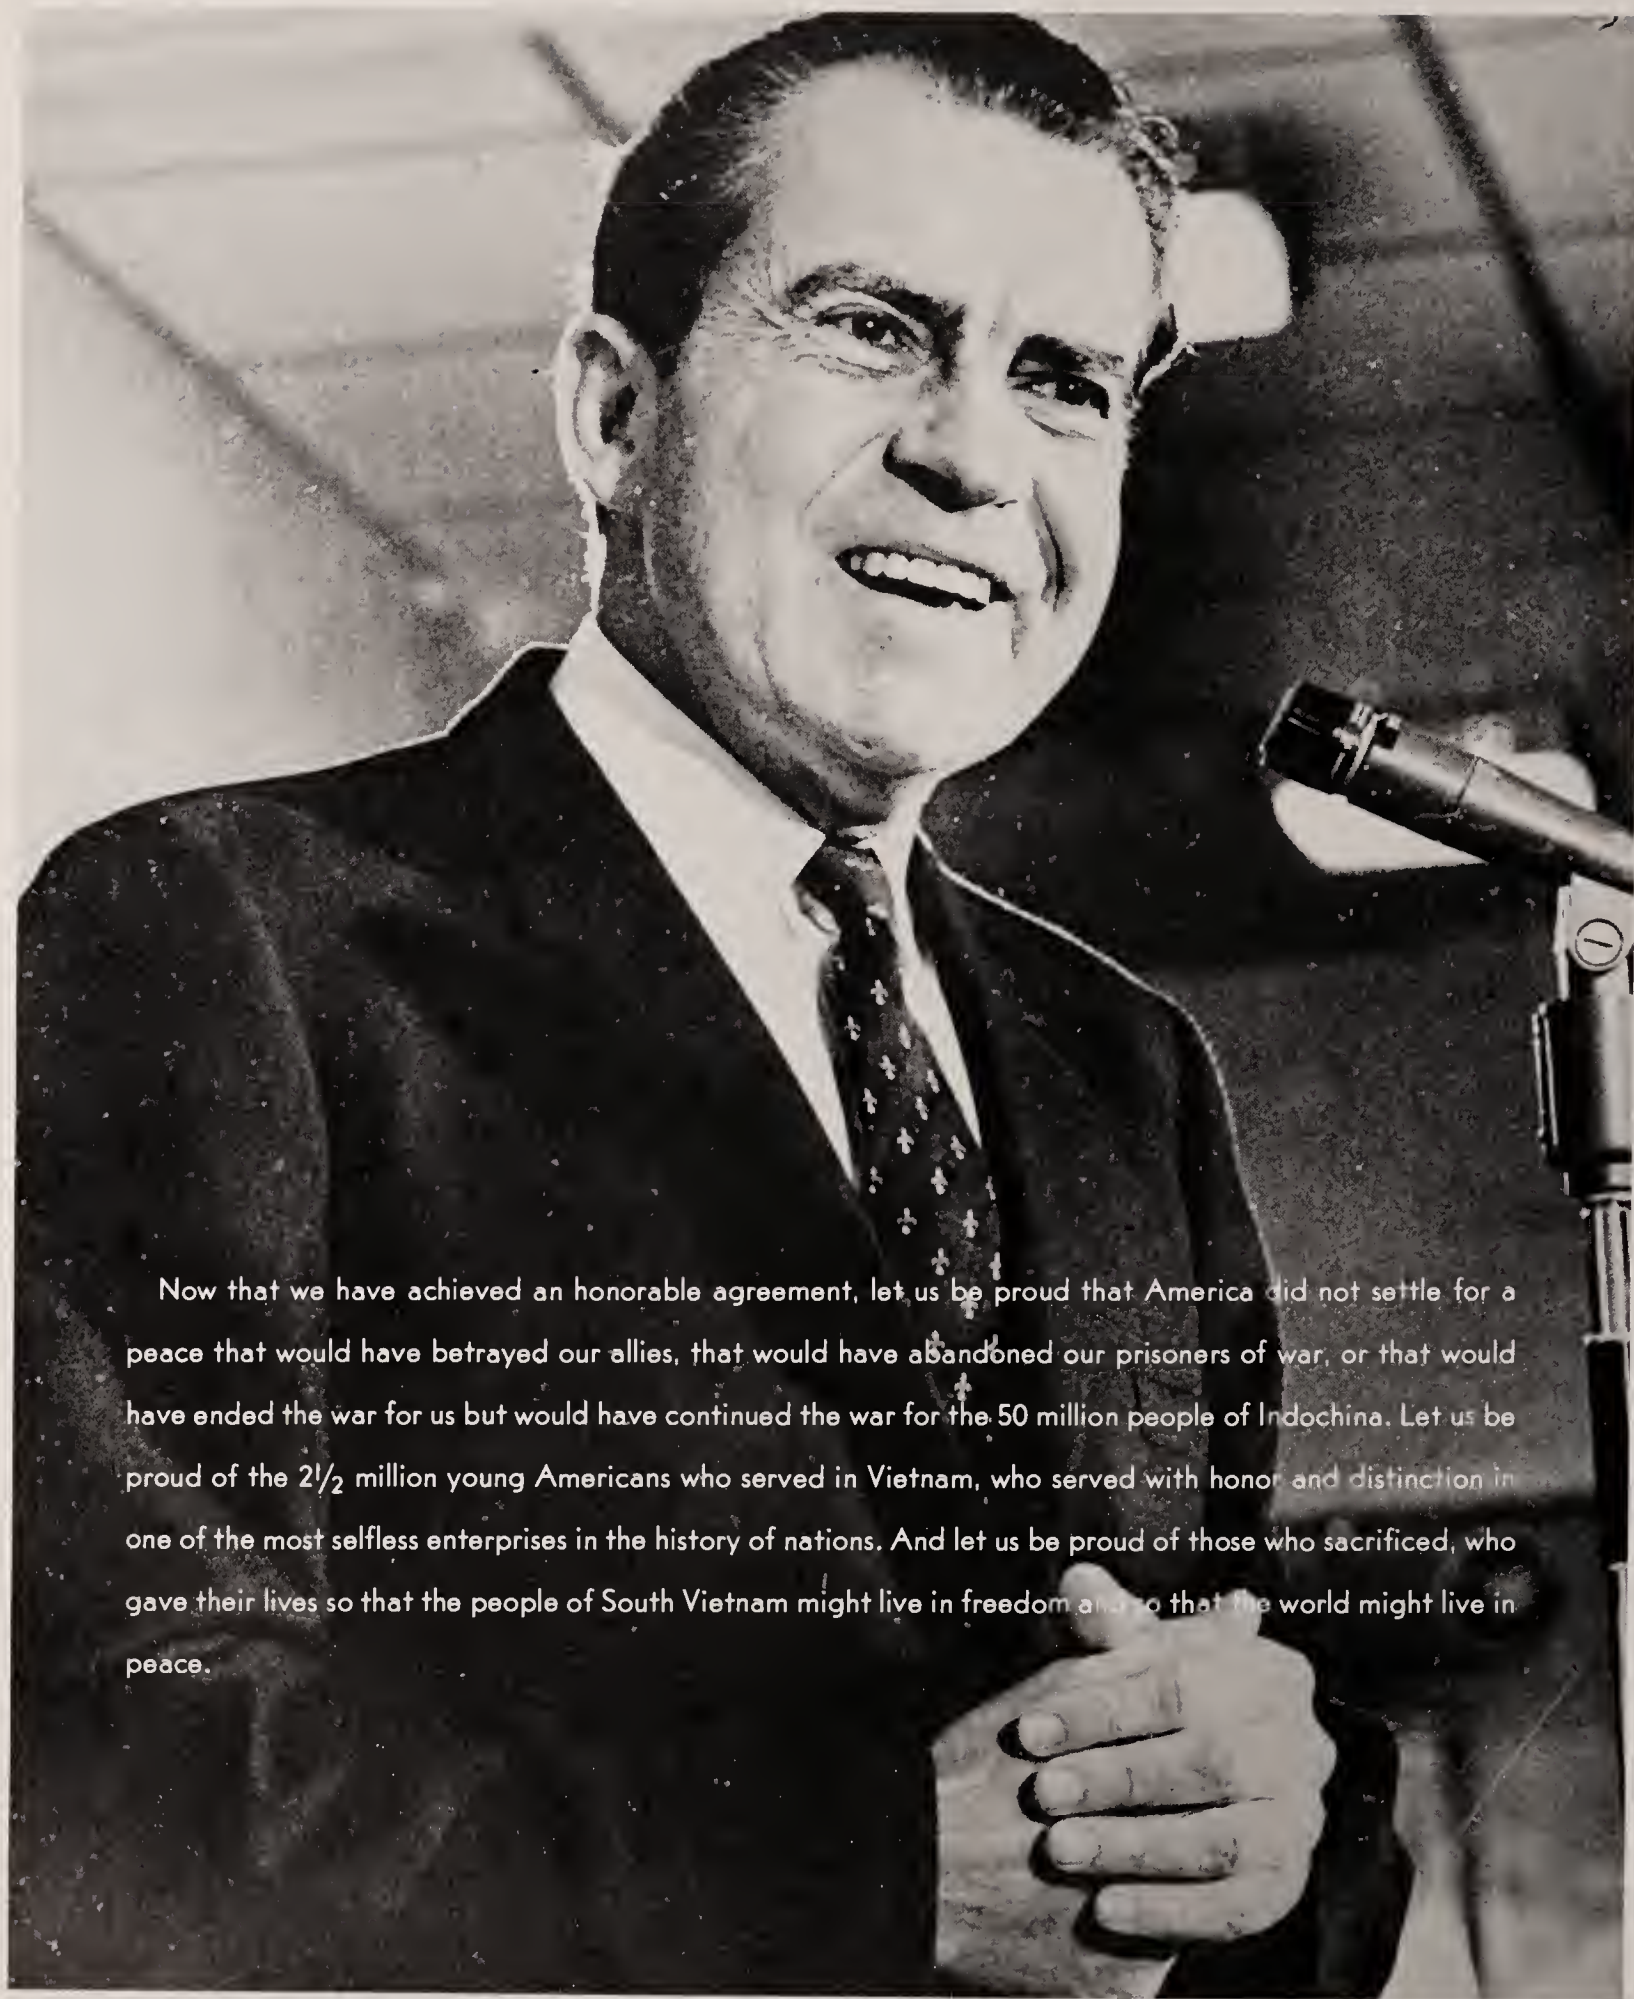

President Nixon
Inaugural Address
January 20, 1973

Now that we have achieved an honorable agreement, let us be proud that America did not settle for a peace that would have betrayed our allies, that would have abandoned our prisoners of war, or that would have ended the war for us but would have continued the war for the 50 million people of Indochina. Let us be proud of the 2½ million young Americans who served in Vietnam, who served with honor and distinction in one of the most selfless enterprises in the history of nations. And let us be proud of those who sacrificed, who gave their lives so that the people of South Vietnam might live in freedom and so that the world might live in peace.

appalachian arts festival

muriel dressler

The Festival this year marked the fourth annual forum for Appalachian cultural studies at Morris Harvey College. The purpose for these festivals is to provide opportunities for dialogue, seminars, and workshops pertaining to Appalachian historical and cultural dynamics, and for encouraging the written, dramatic, cinematic, and musical arts in the region. The director, William Plumley, is an assistant professor of English at Morris Harvey College. He is a poet, essayist, and television moderator.

This year's calendar included such personalities as Muriel Dressler, Lewis MacAdams, Clyde Ware, Maryat Lee and Fran Belin, Bill Withers, Dave Morris, and band, James Dickey, and Ruth Ann Musick. These people provided a lively and variable entertainment for the festival. An MHC student was also featured this year.

Another annual happening was the arts and crafts exhibit. It ranged from candy to candles; paintings; sculptures, weaving, and autographed books to hillbilly dolls; and stuffed toys to carved wooden toys.

Films, movies, music, recitations, dramatic readings, and rap sessions filled MHC for three full days.

william plumley

lewis macadams

Clyde Ware was born in West Union, West Virginia. Steeped in folklore, small town life, and mountain music, Mr. Ware began his productive career young. His works include two novels, more than fifty major TV dramas, and three full-length movies.

clyde ware

Dave Morris, Ivydale, and folk music are practically synonymous words. Dave now has his own band and entertains in local evening spots as well as at frequent concerts in the region. He has one long-playing cut and another in process.

dave morris

james dickey and lewis macadams

James Dickey of South Carolina is one of America's foremost poets. He is also the author of the sensational novel and movie, Deliverance.

Lewis MacAdams, a poet born in Texas, has published five books, including City Money, and The Poetry Room. He has read his poetry, as he says, "across the country, from the Fillmore West to New York University."

ruth ann musick

Dr. Ruth Ann Musick, retired from Fairmont State College, discusses her favorite topic, folklore. Her work is included in "Stories from the Hills."

mhc students ross moore and martie hundley.

Bill Withers sound is melodic and simple. The messages are stories and perceptions out of every day life. It's a personal style that touches one's emotions in a restrained way. "Ain't No Sunshine," "Lean on Me" are two of his hits. (below)

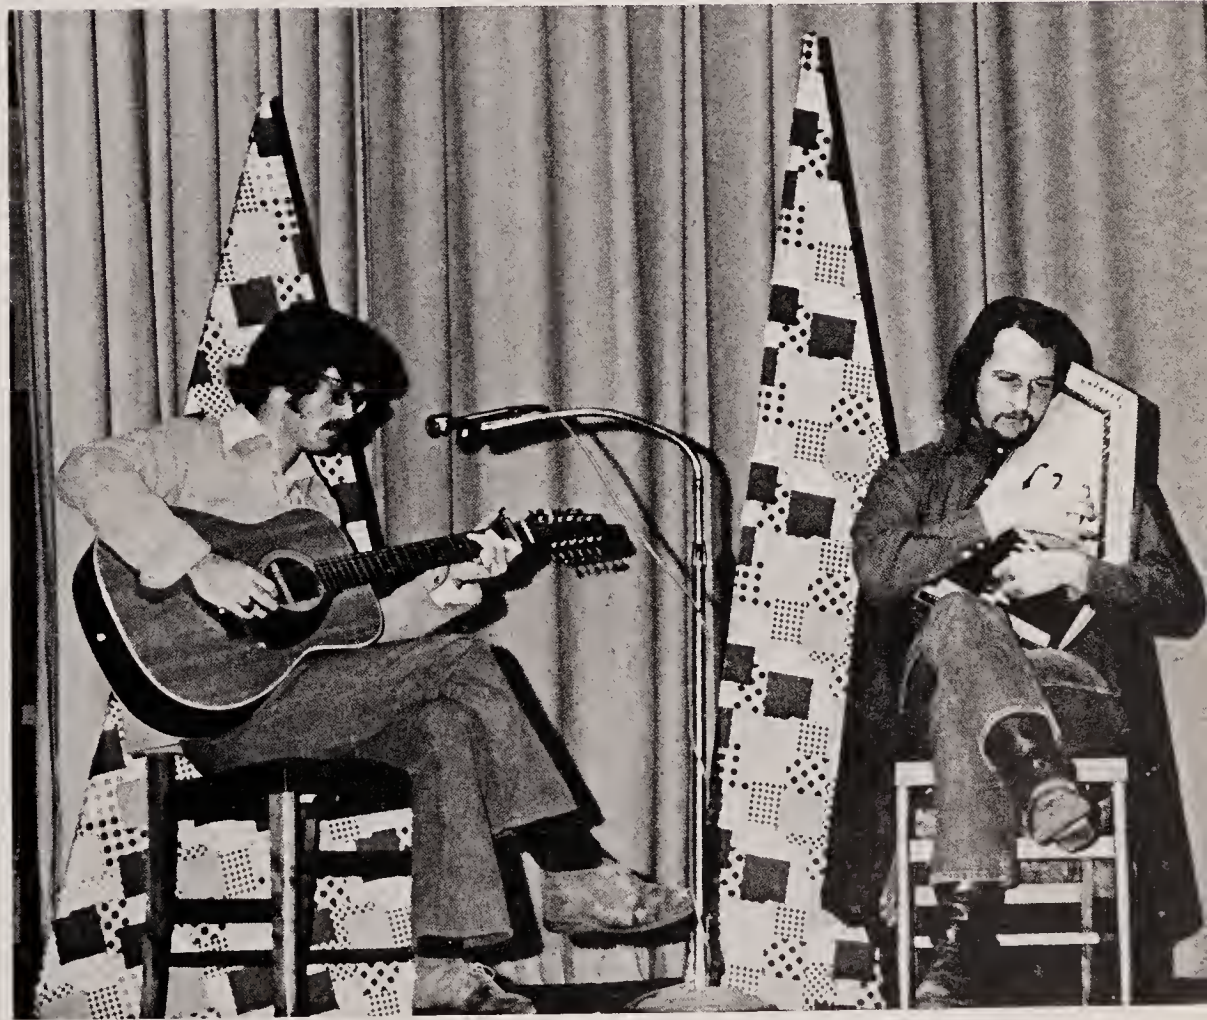

Maryat Lee, playwright and founder of the nation's first street theatre. Miss Lee is best known for her initial street theatre play, "Dope," and for the play, "4 Men and a Monster." Her co-worker is Fran Belin.

Muriel Dressler has been writing professionally and publishing regularly for the past five years. She also has read her poetry on college and high school circuits. She describes her writing motivation as a desire to describe Appalachians as they are, not as they are seen and depicted by those who live and write outside of the region and have non-Appalachian backgrounds.

To the Editor,

As another year closes here at Morris Harvey, I would like to take this time to comment on my first year as a college student. I came to Morris Harvey totally committed to school politics and general programming and, as the year progressed, I became more and more obligated to myself to try to make this college a place where social responsibility was put on the same adult level as the educational standards. This involvement came only with the help of three people whom I would like to acknowledge in this letter. These people are the back-bone of this institution. It is these people who help students when they get into trouble; who attend meeting after meeting trying to get more freedom for all students; and it is these people that break their own backs trying to get the best possible programming with the money available. Through my involvement in Moharv politics, I have seen these people sweat and work for students who never have the GUTS to become part of "THEY." It is always: "They didn't do this!"; or "Why didn't they do it like this!"

I challenge the students of Morris Harvey to look into their pasts and recall if they, the students, ever helped to make things better.

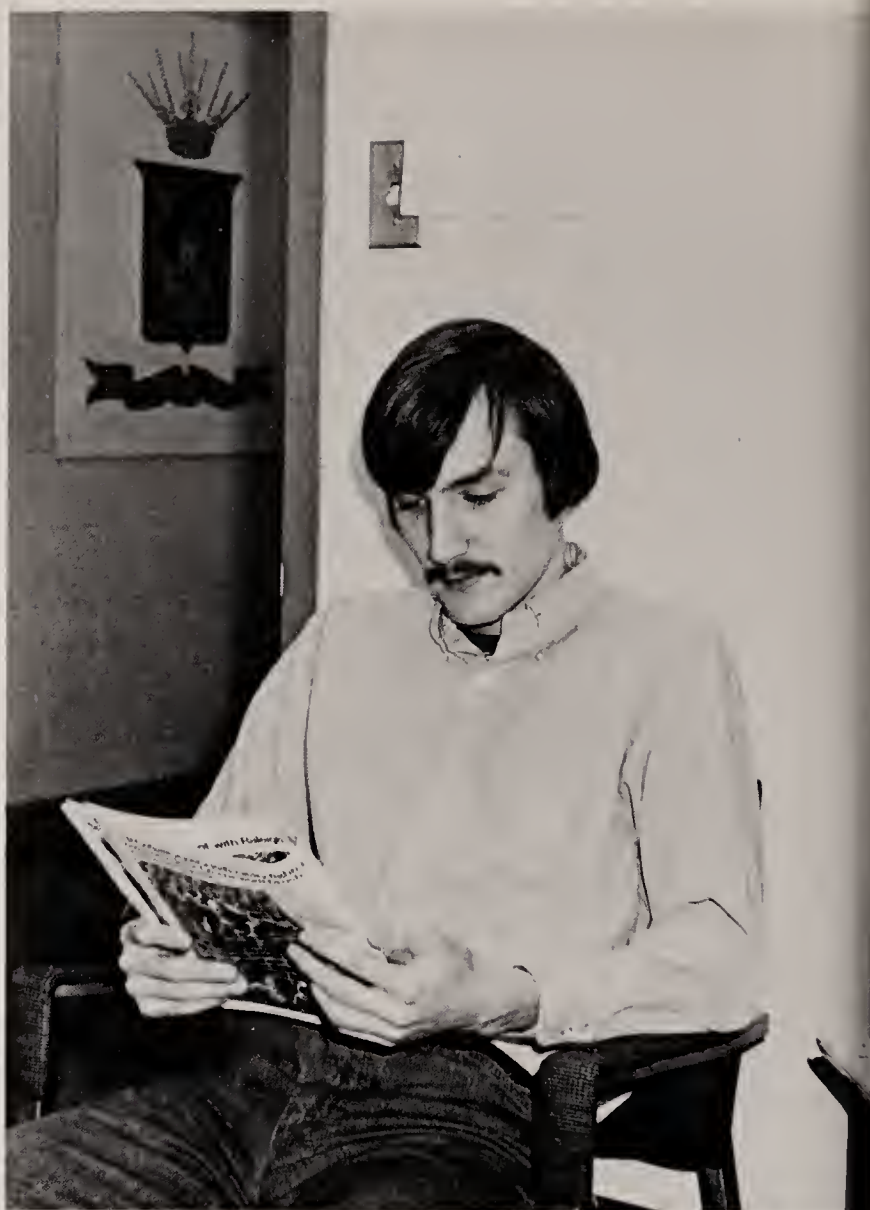

I further challenge any student on this campus to put in the equivalent of hours in one week that these people put in one day toward making this college "Your Kind of Place."

Every year class elections are held. Were you at your respective class meetings? Did you help decide who would have the authority to spend your activity fee? In the last Student Government Association elections, only 400 students voted. Where were the other 1200? Didn't they care? Student involvement is not something for 10 or 15 people, it is for the entire school!

As the year comes to a close, I can honestly say that my enthusiasm has decreased. And this time I can truly say that the blame does not lie with the administration or President Buckalew. It lies in the hands of the students. Did you ever stop complaining long enough to consider the idea that possibly the president doesn't think we are worth the effort to make improvements when only a few students care enough to do something around here. If you don't care, why should he?

In conclusion, I would like to take this opportunity to thank, on behalf of the student body of Morris Harvey College, Tom Deth, Al Faraldi, and Jim Faraldi for being concerned about us.

Here sits a thoughtful thinker, thinking lovely thoughts.
And in her mind we are ever turning,
careful well-planned plots.

And she can never stop until,
her goals in life are found.
The only thing to hold her back,
is the dreadful spectre fear,

But God has given her the drive,
and knowledge holds the key.
That will make her victor in the end,
and set all mankind free.

She has to help them one and all,
they who never get a chance.
To experience the wealth of life,
or live or love or dance.

A friend died today
Along some forgotten path
A bullet claimed his body
A friend claimed his name
A letter found its way
To some forgotten street
Someone cried a moment

Only a memory
Now I wonder what could have been
With such a friend to me
But alas, he's only a memory
Down that path he walked
A man full of life and love
Others dared to deny him a name
I called him — Friend
His grave is not marked Jungle covers all that remains Nothing will ever reveal
Where his soul has gone

This year, we, the 1973 Harveyan staff, have made several changes to try to help update the yearbook in accordance with what other schools do and have. First, we began by changing the size of the book to the standard collegiate-size yearbook. We had to sacrifice a few pages to switch to the big size page, but most good things come by the way of having to sacrifice something for it. Then we thought and tried to come up with a theme — but there was not one to be found. So that brought us to another change.

NO THEME! We thought and hassled the idea of, "what does a theme really mean, how important is it and, most talked about, how many students take time to find where they belong in the theme?" We found few positive answers, so we decided to get students into their book. So the first part of the book was changed from a theme to an open area for original works and photography from fellow students. We thank all of those who took an interest and participated in our change.

In giving thanks, I will never be able to name everyone; but if I have come to you and questioned you, asked for advice, asked for a favor, asked for a listening ear, I'm asking you to accept my thanks now to each one. To the administration, I give a special thanks for undue confidence placed in and upon me, for cooperation, and for a word or two of encouragement to help keep my head up. Then a word to my staff, how do I begin — I can't. But without one or all there would be a page here and there of my section missing. They quarrelled at me, laughed with me at our mistakes, worked — yes worked, and gave me a richer life by giving me the opportunity to know them. Also, to the photographers — Bruce, Mike, Steve, Dan, and Woody — thank you all for being so patient with me. Thank you. Last, but certainly not least, to my family. They have accepted me when I was tired, depressed, worried, and busy. They talked quietly when all was against me and helped me turn around and see that ray of sunshine and hope in the midst of darkness, and they gave me inspiration. They helped me sort my thoughts when I was ready to share them, and they helped when the work load was heavy. Can I thank them? No, but let me say to them, I love you all from the depths of my heart.

Connie, thanks for all you've been this last year. For your help to draw those goofy squares, for that ever insistent, "Let me help," and, of course, for your endless chatter and jokes.

Now, for the final word, before I close and make this all history, to someone I turned to in the lone hours and He was always there. He talked to me so softly and tenderly even in corrections. He is the one from whom I received my strength, faith, love and guidance for each and every day. I could not have done this job without others, but without Him I could not have even had hope for that day or the tomorrows I've faced. I think anyone who knows me, knows who I am talking about, but in case you don't, my friend, let me tell you that this friend of mine is Jesus.
